

At Midwest Employers Casualty Company, we understand the value of maintaining a healthy and productive workforce.

The importance of safety cannot be overstated within the self-insurance community. Because of the loss sensitive nature of a self-insurance plan, each dollar saved as a result of preventing a workplace accident is a dollar that a self-insurer can redirect back into its own operations.

This translates into improved productivity and profitability for many self-insured companies today.

BUILDING A STRONG FOUNDATION

Recognizing the value of a strong safety program to self-insured companies, Midwest Employers Casualty Company is pleased to offer MECC Safety Cornerstones.

MECC Safety Cornerstones is a comprehensive collection of industry-specific OSHA and safety-related resources, training, and programs stored in an easy to use online format. This information is available 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. Our intention audits, checklists, and reports. These can then be used to address a self-insurer's specific workplace needs.

Compliance – The Second Corner of Safety

The Compliance Cornerstone enables a self-insurer to create and categorize reports of all related training materials, resources, and programs to ensure a self-insurer is complying with governmental rules and regulations.

In the event additional resources are needed to address specific questions, our Research Cornerstone offers self-insurers the option of calling one of our OSHA Advisors for research assistance.

Training – The Fourth Corner of Safety

The Training Cornerstone provides self-insurers with immediate access to professionally developed online courses and presentations. These can be customized to enhance any existing safety program or culture. Moreover, the Training Cornerstone offers self-insureds maximum flexibility by making training courses and presentations available to employees both in a classroom setting as well as online.

Because of the loss sensitive nature of a self-insurance plan, each dollar saved as a result of preventing a workplace accident is a dollar that a self-insurer can redirect back into its own operations.

is to provide the self-insurer with the tools and resources necessary to establish and maintain a successful safety program.

Our Safety Cornerstones Program revolves around what we refer to as the four Corners of Safety– Analysis, Compliance, Research, and Training.

Analysis – The First Corner of Safety

The Analysis Cornerstone is designed to help self-insureds analyze their existing workplace environment. Self-insureds are able to create and print a wide range of professionally written safety

In addition, a current copy of OSHA regulations as well as the company's own safety policies and procedures can be conveniently stored online and accessed at any workstation with an internet connection.

Research – The Third Corner of Safety

Our Research Cornerstone can help safety professionals stay current on the latest safety news, trends, and techniques the industry has to offer. Our Research Cornerstone database is updated on a daily basis. This virtual safety library can be accessed from any location in the country via the internet.

Whether a self-insured company is looking to develop a brand new safety program or enhance an existing one, Safety Cornerstones can be a valuable asset to these efforts. Analysis, Compliance, Research, and Training are key to successfully controlling workers' compensation costs.
